

Bridging the gap

In 1964, James, a young tribal boy from a forest village in Jharkhand, travelled to Vellore, Tamil Nadu. He joined the x-ray technician's course and learned how to run an x-ray machine.

He then spent his life working in a small hospital near his home in Hiranpur. For many years, he was the only x-ray technician in the entire district!

Last month, James found out that he needed a prostate operation. But there was no specialist surgeon in Hiranpur. Fifty-five years later, James started his second journey to Vellore. His endoscopic surgery was successfully done in CMC. Our Person-to-Person fund covered all the costs.

Before setting out for home, James and his family sang a song of thanksgiving –
“We have seen the love of god in the healing work at CMC!”
