

GHHM COURSE

South Asia 2023-2024

WHY WE DO IT?

Medical doctors working in low resource and/or complex humanitarian settings face many challenges in providing health care. While they are rich in experience, their progress in formal medical education is often limited by their context

The Global Health and Humanitarian Medicine course (GHHM) is a part-time, online, blended learning course for medical doctors providing high-quality education in global health, tropical and humanitarian medicine; to improve patient care and to strengthen capacity for organization of health care programs in low-and-middle-income countries, including humanitarian crisis contexts.

WHO IS IT FOR?

A qualified medical doctor with more than two years of work experience who is willing to commit 6-8 hours per week to learning, through live webinars and online activities and self-directed

WHAT WE DO?

You will learn about:

- Tropical medicine and other public health priorities in low-and-middle-income countries
- Humanitarian medical interventions

GHHM is a preparatory course for the Diploma in Tropical Medicine & Hygiene (DTM&H) exam of the Royal College of Physicians. The exam is expected to be held in the summer of 2024.

HOW WE DO IT?

The program covers about 350 hours of learning over ten months through:

- Weekly seminars
- Online quizzes
- Group-based case discussions and exercises
- Online videos
- Minimum of 12 hours of in-person parasitology laboratory teaching
